Light rail - good for cities, good for business

- Light rail can deliver improvements to economic competitiveness.

- The confidence for long-term investment is created by the presence of permanent infrastructure - tracks and stations.

- Light rail provides a high-quality, consistent and sustainable service, allowing businesses to operate more efficiently.

- Introducing light rail can drive urban regeneration - leading to inward investment, a positive effect on employment and property prices, and focused development instead of sprawl.